

Edward G Beyer

Beyer studied art at the Art Institute of Chicago, Religious Art at UCLA, and art and design at the L.A School of Design. During the Korean conflict, as a camouflage expert for the US Army, Ed received special commendations for his careful attention to color, light and shadow. Douglas Aircraft called upon his insight to paint detailed space concepts for the aerospace industry. He spent several years as a package designer for Max Factor and then developed his own design and consultancy business. Now retired, he paints full time, and resides in San Clemente, CA.

He paints with transparent and opaque acrylics on canvas. His large paintings are creations from his imagination. Mr. Beyer listens to classical music in his studio and incorporates what he hears and feels into his paintings.

“My paintings exhibit movement and energy. As in music, poetry, dance, and literature, discipline and truth are important to my art. I live in a very exciting world and rarely paint the same thought twice. Art is a great place to live,” said Beyer.
